was established in 1985 in Brisbane, Australia, by Rory Mulvey, a graduate of University College Dublin. Rory returned to Ireland in 1994 and has since continued to develop this unique study skills programme. SES is now widely regarded as the market leader in this specialist area of education. In the last academic year, SES was invited into more than 350 schools and colleges to instruct their students in these unique learning methods.

Ongoing research by teachers and educational administrators ensures that this course continues to be recognised as the most effective seminar available in this specialist field.

Staff involved in presenting the seminar are all experienced secondary school teachers, trained in the S.E.S. study techniques, and selected for their ability to motivate and communicate effectively with students.

"Students are amazed at how learning can be made a lot easier - they won't find this seminar boring!"
